PREFACE.

In this genealogy and biography perfection is not claimed, for the means at hand did not warrant a thorough work, such as we should have been glad to issue. Nevertheless, we believe it sufficient to show the direct lineage of any descendant of the first Waldo of America, if the name should have been overlooked. So far as possible each branch has been completed, some reaching to the last, the tenth generation, others only to the sixth and seventh generations. A work of this kind, though incomplete, forms a sure basis for a more perfect one some time in the future, when the interest of the whole family is more awakened on the subject. Biographical sketches have been sought for, and as many as could be procured have been inserted, that we might acquaint ourselves with the acquisitions of our ancestors, for such knowledge generally establishes a foundation upon which posterity builds, and improves if possible. Though the past generations have shown a record that kindles pride in the hearts of their descendants, and we have perfect faith in those yet to come, keeping in mind the facts concerning the family that animate and merit pride will do no harm, but rather tend to a still stronger growth, for man is but man no matter whatever blood courses his veins. Goldsmith says, "Man seems the only growth that dwindles here," and then reiterates the fact that there must be either advancement or retrogression :

"For, as refinement stops from sire to son, Unalter'd, unimprov'd the manners run."

The late Judge Loren P. Waldo, who, previous to the war, had thought of publishing a work similar to this one, had collected papers giving the descendants of Edward Waldo, Jr., for several generations, besides other information. Charles E. Waldo gave the descendants of Jesse Waldo, and Mrs. S. G. Waters the descendants of Abner Waldo.

PREFACE.

To prevent confusion, if the reader will note each chapter, excepting the first, begins with one of the children of Cornelius Waldo, the first generation in America, and that the descendants of each follow in a direct line, beginning with the first born of each family and continuing to his or her last descendant, then returning to the next younger and repeat the same, there will be no misunderstanding. In the case where several bear the same name, their wives maiden names will help to distinguish them, outside of the generation, which will generally be found sufficient.

CHAPTER I.

The Waldo Family.

The name Waldo, which has figured in history for six hundred years, originated with a family of France, one member of which was the noted Pierre de Vaux, or Peter Waldo, of Lyons. Hence the established belief that he was the first recorded ancestor of this great family that has come down to the present day, retaining many of the striking qualities that characterized him and his people. He received his sur-name from the place of his nativity, the town of Waldum or Vaux, near the city of Lyons. He was the leader of the sect of Waldenses which had existed, for some time previous to his uniting with them, in quiet opposition to the Roman church, but after he joined them gained the reputation as the first founder of that body, and it may be truly said that he spread new life among them, for they came out openly and renounced papal power, he being their strong advocate and protector. He lost no opportunity to oppose the pope openly, and though warned to cease his preaching continued the same. In preaching he took pains to prove his doctrines, always avoiding all unnatural form, and asserted boldly that the "church of Rome was in a state of apostasy from the true faith of the gospel; that she was the harlot of Babylon, and the barren fig-tree which our Lord cursed ; that we are not bound to obey the pope, who is not the true head of the church ; that monasticism is like corrupt carrion, and has the mark of the beast ; and that masses and purgatory, the dedication of temples, and the worship of the saints are inventions of the devil." He was a rich merchant, and distributed his goods freely to the poor. William Hodgson's "History of Martyrs, etc.," contains an extended account of the Waldenses and their leader.

The following is evidence that Thomas and not Peter, was the first known ancestor of the Waldos. He was probably a brother of Peter, and was also identified with the Waldenses :

According to Hasted, in his history of Kent, "this family is said to be descended from THOMAS WALDO, of Lyons, in the Kingdom of France, one of the first who publicly renounced the doctrines of the Court of Rome. One of his descendants, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, to escape the persecutions of the Duke D'Alva, came over from the Netherlands to England, where his descendants afterwards settled." In a house belonging to one of the representatives of the Waldo family, situated at Mitchans, in Surrey, England, there still exists a handsome carved oak wainscotting, with a curious oak chimney-piece, the cornice of the wainscot being a broad border of oak, richly carved with acorns, oak leaves and grapes, with the name "Peter Waldo" cut thereon, with the date 1575 or 1573, the last figure being dim, making it uncertain. The mistake about Peter Waldo being the first known ancestor may have originated from this second Peter, who was evidently a descendant of Thomas Waldo. It appears the celebrated Peter Waldo was never married, but he left at least two brothers, one of whom died a galley slave, and the other on his way to Bohemia, where, also, Peter died in 1179. (Letter dated March 3, 1863, from Rev. J. C. Goussier, British Chaplain at Lyons.) From 1575 to 1654 no records have been found relative to the family.

DEA. CORNELIUS WALDO.

Cornelius Waldo, the first by that name permanently located in this country, came from England and settled in Ipswich, Mass., according to "Savage's Genealogy of Early Settlers", in 1654. Married Hannah, daughter of John and Eliza Coggs-well. Children: John, Cornelius, Daniel, Rebecca, Jonathan.

Dea. Waldo removed, in 1655 or 1657, to Chelmsford, Mass. The records refer to him constantly as deacon. He was deacon of a church there during his life, of which Rev. Mr. Fiske was pastor. He owned considerable real estate in Chelmsford, and was at one time an inn-keeper there; and the spacious, comfortable old tavern, with its hospitable landlord, was a favorite among the traveling public of that remote day, when, instead of the steam coach, the "four-in-hand" came rolling up to the door at regular intervals, when the general overturning of baggage and turning out of passengers indicated a short respite and a few hours or night's rest for the weary traveler. Many prominent personages stopped at the inn. It is quite probable the Rev. Edward Bulkley died there. He also owned a farm in North Chelmsford, Mass., where he settled his son Daniel, who built a grist mill on it in 1695, at the mouth of Stony Brook, below the way that leads to Dunstable, Mass. A grist mill and saw mill were standing upon this spot as late as 1820. The deacon was a leading man in Chelmsford. He died in 1701, June or Jan. 3. His property was divided among his children.

CHAPTER II.

JOHN WALDO

AND DESCENDANTS.

John Waldo, son of Dea. Cornelius, was born, probably, in Chelmsford; married Rebecca, the daughter of Samuel Adams, about 1676, who was of the same line as that of John Adams, the President of the United States. Mr. Adams was a man of wealth, owning 600 acres of land in Chelmsford, Mass. Children, 3rd generation: John, Edward, Rebecca, Catherine, Ruth, Sarah, Abigail.

John was representative from Dunstable, Mass., in 1689—short session. He removed at the “time of the Indian war” to Windham, Conn., and there died in 1700. His will of the 14th of April, 1700, names Rebecca, his wife, son John, and refers to other children not named. His inventory was £290, 07s., besides the estate at Chelmsford. A deed, signed by one Larabee, Jan. 2, 1699, to John Waldo, of Windham, is evidence that he was living there at that time. Another deed to him from Richard Edgerton, dated Jan. 4, 1698, gives his residence as Boston. Probably settled in Windham during that year. His residence in town of Windham was between Windham village and Willimantic, on the east side of the river, on the place afterwards owned by Roger Bingham and descendants.

John Waldo, Jr., son of John Waldo and Rebecca Adams, was born in Chelmsford, Mass., May 19, 1678. We have been unable to secure anything of value concerning John, Jr. Probably had no descendants. Removed to Boston after the death of his father.

Dea. Edward Waldo, son of John Waldo and Rebecca Adams, born 1683, died 1767; married Thankful, daughter of Shubael Dimock, of Mansfield, Conn., June 28, 1706. She was born 1685, died 1757. Children, 4th generation: Shubael, Edward, Jr., Cornelius, Ann, John, Bethuel, Thankful, Joanna, Zacheus, John. Edward was deacon of the Congregational church in Scotland. The towns of Windham and Scotland were one for many years. After the town was divided the part containing Windham village and Willimantic retained the original name of Windham.

There is a document in Hartford, Conn., the original application of sundry citizens of the town of Windham, Conn., for a new county, under date of May, 1723, signed by the above-named Edward Waldo. He was an extensive farmer of that town. Edward and his wife, Thankful Dimock, were buried in Scotland, Conn., in what is known as the "Palmertown Burying-ground." He built a house in the town of Scotland, near the county line, about the year 1714. The house is still standing, and owned by a descendant.

Shubael Waldo, son of Edward Waldo and Thankful Dimock, married Abigail Allen, of Mansfield, Conn., Oct. 14, 1730. Children, 5th generation: Samuel, Shubael, Abiathar, Jesse, Jonathan, Thankful, Edward, Daniel, Mary, Abigail, Beulah, Ruth, Rebecca, Calvin.

Shubael removed from Windham to Alstead, N. H., in 1768, where many of his descendants now live.

Rev. Samuel Waldo, son of Shubael Waldo and Abigail Allen, was born Sept. 18, 1731; married Hannah Waters, of New Fairfield, Nov. 21, 1754. He was a minister of the Baptist church.

Shubael Waldo, Jr., shoemaker and tanner, born Jan. 10, 1733; married Priscilla, daughter of Samuel Smith, of Mansfield, Conn., Oct. 2, 1754. Children, 6th generation: Talitha, born Aug. 26, 1755.

Abiathar Waldo, farmer of Shaftsbury, Vt., born Jan. 2, 1735, son of Shubael Waldo and Abigail Allen.

Jesse Waldo, son of Shubael Waldo and Abigail Allen, born Sept. 6, 1736, in Mansfield, Conn., died Feb. 28, 1823; married April 2, 1760, to Bridget Thompson of Wilington, Conn., daughter of Samuel Thompson, born about 1735 or '36, died Jan. 21, 1805. Children, 6th generation, birth-place, Mansfield: Jesse, born Feb. 17, 1761, died Nov. 22, 1826, Prattsburg, N. Y.; Nathan, born Oct. 28, 1762, died Dec. 26, 1840, Elba, N. Y.; Ephraim, born Sept. 4, 1764; Roger, born Aug. 2, 1766, physician in Connecticut; Olive, born Sept. 13, 1768; Zacheus, born Sept. 27, 1770; Charles, born Sept. 4, 1774, died May 5, 1855, Prattsburg, N. Y.

Jesse Waldo, Jr., son of Jesse Waldo and Bridget Thompson, married Dec. 14, 1786, at Mansfield, Conn., Martha, daughter of Aaron and Abigail (Freeman) Hovey, born Dec. 9, 1768, Mansfield, Conn., died April 17, 1849, Prattsburg, N. Y. Children, 7th generation: Martha, born March 5, 1788, Mansfield, Conn., died May 27, 1856, Elba, N. Y.; Jesse, born May 6, 1790, Mansfield, died May 27, 1844, Pulteney, N. Y.; Aaron, born May 24, 1792, Mansfield, died March 19, 1866, Darant, Iowa; Otis, born Dec. 28, 1794, Brookfield, N. Y., died July 15, 1870, Prattsburg, N. Y.; Albigeance, born Feb. 23, 1797, Bridgewater, N. Y., died June 11, 1876, Prattsburg; Henry Hovey, born Oct. 21, 1799, Bridgewater, died Sept. 3, 1872, Prattsburg; Lucius, born June 25, 1802, Bridgewater; Charles, born Nov. 2, 1805, Prattsburg; Abigail, born Feb. 1, 1809, Prattsburg, died March 28, 1809, same place; Edmund Freeman, born June 21, 1811, Prattsburg.

Martha (Waldo) Pardee, daughter of Jesse Waldo and Martha Hovey, married March 18, 1806, Prattsburg, N. Y., to Isaac Pardee, son of Jonathan and Tryphena (Beecher) Pardee, born July 2, 1778, New Haven, Conn., died Jan. 15, 1857, Elba, N. Y. Children, 8th generation: Tracy, born Nov. 26, 1807, Pulteney, N. Y.; Gerry, born June 17, 1809, Pulteney, died Nov. 15, 1856, Allegan, Mich.; Laura, born March 30, 1811, Pulteney, died Jan. 12, 1813, same place; ———, born Nov. 20, 1812, Pulteney, died Jan. 29, following year, same place; Laura, born Dec. 1, 1813, Pulteney, died Jan. 18, 1879, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Isaac, born Feb. 10, 1816, Pulteney, died June 5, 1820, Elba, N. Y.; Martha Hovey, born May 16, 1818, Elba, N. Y., died Jan. 31, 1876, Allegan, Mich.; Henrietta, born Feb. 8, 1820, Elba, died April, 1877; Harriet, born Feb. 2, 1822, Elba; Isaac Beecher, born April 9, 1824, Elba; Mary Jane, born Aug. 13, 1826, Elba; Fidelia Ann, born Aug. 9, 1828, Elba.

Tracy Pardee, son of Martha Waldo and Isaac Pardee, married Oct. 17, 1837, Oakfield, N. Y., to Nancy Ann, daughter of John G. and Nancy A. (Weed) Satterlee, born Nov. 18, 1819, Greenfield, N. Y., died Feb. 12, 1875, Batavia, N. Y. Children, 9th generation: Charles Parker, born Oct. 12, 1838, Oakland, N. Y.; Margaretta Cornelia, born May 31, 1840, Oakland; George Satterlee, Jan. 3, 1846, Alabama, N. Y.; Julia Antoinette, Feb. 1, 1855, Batavia, N. Y.

Margaretta C. (Pardee) Humphreys, daughter of Tracy Pardee and Nancy A. Satterlee, married Jan. 9, 1862, Batavia, N. Y., to George Hector, son of Hector Humphreys, born Oct. 19, 1839.

Gerry Pardee, son of Martha Waldo and Isaac Pardee, married Oct. 12, 1840, Batavia, N. Y., to Sarah, daughter of Philip and Sarah (Roberts) Griswold, born Nov. 2, 1820, Bethany, N. Y., died Jan. 28, 1864, Allegan, Mich. Children, 9th generation: Morrison Philip, born Oct. 8, 1841, Batavia, N. Y.; Edmund Waldo, born Nov. 2, 1843, Batavia, died March 19, 1863, Columbus, O.; Nelson, born Nov. 28, 1847, Elba, N. Y.; Laura Elizabeth, born Feb. 18, 1851, Allegan, Mich.; Gerry, born Dec. 28, 1856, Allegan.

Edmund enlisted in summer of '62 as private in Co. L., 4th Michigan Cavalry. Was taken prisoner at battle of Stone River, Tenn. Paroled and furloughed; while on his way home stopped at Camp Chase, Columbus, and was found dead in bed next morning. Dropsy of heart.

Laura (Pardee) Barker, daughter of Martha Waldo and Isaac Pardee, married Feb. 21, 1833, Elba, N. Y., to Levi Sherburn, son of Ebenezer Barker, born June 12, 1806. Children, 9th generation: Helen Eliza, born June 1, 1834, Oakfield, N. Y.; Frances Amanda, born Oct. 14, '35, Oakfield; Harriet Theresa, born Jan. 31, '37, Oakfield, died Jan. 5, '38, same place; Elizabeth Gertrude, born Oct. 7, '38, Oakfield; Emogene, born Nov. 24, '40, Oakfield, died Feb. 15, '41, Oakfield; Justus Hermon, born Jan. 5, '42, Oakfield, died March 12, '43, same place; Martha Pardee, born Jan. 3, '47, Oakfield, died July 17, '47, same place; John Ebenezer, born June 16, '49, Oakfield; James, born July 17, '55, Kalamazoo, Mich., died same year.

Helen E. (Barker) Putnam, daughter of Laura Pardee and Levi Barker, married Nov. 26, 1856, Kalamazoo, Mich., to Lyman, son of Franklin Putnam, born Jan. 14, '20, died June 22, '63, Kalamazoo. Children, 10th generation: Helen Louisa, born Sept. 1, '62, Battle Creek, Mich.

Frances A. (Barker) Booth, married June 7, 1855, Kalamazoo, Mich., to Edward Brooks, son of Wm. L. Booth, born Sept. 12, '31.

Elizabeth G. (Barker) Sanford, married Sept. 3, 1868, Ann Arbor, Mich., to Charles Addison, son of Ezra and Elmira (Chamberlain) Sanford, born April 16, '38, Saline, Mich.

Martha H. (Pardee) Griswold, daughter of Martha Waldo and Isaac Pardee, married Sept. 17, 1837, Elba, N. Y., to Zenas Lane, son of Philip and Sarah (Roberts) Griswold, born May 11, '14, Bethany, N. Y. Children, 9th generation: Isaac Pardee, born Oct. 28, 1838, Batavia, N. Y.; Martha Mary, born May 21, '41, Batavia; George Beecher, born Nov. 12, '48, Allegan, Mich.; Edward Philip, born Jan. 4, '51, Allegan.

Isaac P. Griswold, married March 1, 1870, at Kalamazoo, Mich., to Marilla, daughter of John and Almira (Rathbun) Millham, born Oct. 17, 1838.

Martha M. (Griswold) Sherwood, married Sept. 19, 1866, to Marion C., son of Hull and Julia A. (Crittenden) Sherwood, who was born Jan. 11, 1833 or '34, Otsego, Mich. Children, 10th generation: Rubie Mary, born Feb. 7, 1868, Allegan, Mich.; Martha Griswold, born Jan. 1, 1872, same town.

Edward P. Griswold, married Aug. 3, 1872, to Florence Louise, daughter of Alanson and Eliza (Price) Case, who was born Nov. 26, 1852.

Henrietta (Pardee) Osborn, daughter of Martha Waldo and Isaac Pardee, married April 15, 1845, at Elba, N. Y., to Eli, son of Nehemiah and Mary (Fraser) Osborn, who was born Aug. 12, 1806, at Gelderland, N. Y., died Aug. 3, '59. Children, 9th generation: Nehemiah, born Feb. 3, 1847, at Alabama, N. Y.; Mary, born July 4, '48, same town.

Harriet (Pardee) Osborn, daughter of Martha Waldo and Isaac Pardee, married April 13, 1854, Nehemiah Osborn, brother of Eli, born Feb. 6, 1817. Children, 9th generation, John, born October, 1858; Martha Waldo, born Jan. 6, '61; Mary Pardee, born Oct. 26, '63.

Isaac B. Pardee, son of Martha Waldo and Isaac Pardee, married Nov. 29, 1864, Adams, N. Y., to Carrie, daughter of Alonzo and Susan (Clark) Maxon, who was born Nov. 26, 1830.

Mary J. (Pardee) Griswold, daughter of Martha Waldo and Isaac Pardee, married Oct. 19, 1876, Albany, to Zenas Lane Griswold.

Fidelia A. (Pardee) Scott, daughter of Martha and Isaac, married George Scott.

Jesse Waldo, son of Jesse Waldo, Jr., and Martha Hovey, born May 6, 1790, at Mansfield, Conn., died April 3, 1844, Pulteney, N. Y.; married Jan. 8, 1816, at Prattsburg, N. Y., to Mary, daughter of Levi and Mary (Prentice) Fay, born June 30, 1791, at Walpole, N. H., died Aug. 7, 1849, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Children, 8th generation: Levi Fay, born Jan. 28, 1817, at Prattsburg, N. Y.; Martha Mary, born Dec. 24, 1818, at Pulteney, N. Y., died April 3, 1820, same town; Martha Mary, born March 24, 1820, at Pulteney, died Aug. 5, 1848, same town.

This Jesse was a farmer, and lived on a farm about a mile from the old homestead, and three miles from the village of Prattsburg, in Pulteney township, Steuben county, N. Y. His brothers, with the exception of Edmund, all lived on farms in the immediate vicinity, and at one time there were nearly seventy of their children all living at home, near Prattsburg.

Rev. Levi F. Waldo, son of Jesse Waldo and Mary Fay, married Aug. 22, 1844, at Keene, N. H., to Lucy Elizabeth, daughter of Calvin and Sophia (Dickey) Fay, who was born Nov. 17, 1816, at Prattsburg, N. Y., died March 3, 1877, Frankfort, Mich. Children, 9th generation: Charles Edward, born Feb. 28, 1846, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; William Howard, born same town, Sept. 17, 1849, died Aug. 7, 1855, North Brookfield, Mass.; Edmund Hovey, born Sept. 12, 1855, at North Brookfield, Mass.

Levi married for his second wife, July 23, 1878, Silence Paddock (Hard) Cady, daughter of Rev. J. H. and Matilda H. (Barker) Hard, widow of James F. Cady, who was born Aug. 20, 1829, Sardinia, N. Y. She had ten children by her first husband.

Levi is a graduate of Union College, N. Y., and went through a course of study for the ministry in a theological seminary in New York city. He was first settled over a Congregational church in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He is now preaching for the Congregational church of Shelby, Mich.

Charles Edward, son of Levi, is a lawyer in Canon City, Col., and County Judge of Fremont county. He is interested in the genealogy of his people, and collected a good deal of material for this part of the work, which was kindly furnished us by his brother Edmund, who had the papers.

Edmund Hovey Waldo, son of Rev. Levi Waldo and Lucy Fay, telegraph operator, of Boston, married Nov. 17, 1880, at Keene, N. H., to Mary Ida, daughter of George Howard and Mary Jane (Fay) Gilbert, who was born Dec. 5, 1859, Walpole, N. H. Children, 10th generation: Charles Elmon, born Sept. 7, 1881, at Keene, N. H.; George Howard, born May 6, '83, Charlestown, Mass., died June 22, same year.

This branch of the family, the descendants of Jesse and Mary, have lost one very distinguishing characteristic of the Waldos—the dark features, hair and eyes. This is due to the infusion of the Fay blood, the last three generations having each married Fays, or descendants of them.

Aaron Waldo, son of Jesse Waldo and Martha Hovey, married Nov. 10, 1819, Bath, N. Y., to Mary, daughter of Roswell and Esther (Hemenway) Davenport, born Aug. 26, 1803, East Haven, Conn. Children, 8th generation, birthplace, Pulteney, N. Y.: Mary Esther, born March 20, 1824; Aaron Hovey, June 14, 1826, died June 11, 1841, Pulteney; John Davenport, born Aug. 23, 1831.

Mary Esther (Waldo) Sheldon, daughter of Aaron Waldo and Mary Davenport, married Dec. 28, 1843, Pulteney, N. Y., to Philo, son of Wareham and Honor (Demming) Sheldon, born July 18, 1817, Huron, N. Y. Children, 9th generation: Charles Hovey, born Apr. 26, 1847, Prattsburg, N. Y., died June 9, 1848, Huron, N. Y.; Mary Honor, born Apr. 27, 1850, Clyde, N. Y., died Feb., 22, 1875, Batavia, N. Y.; Edmund Waldo, born Jan. 28, 1857, Geneva, N. Y.

John Davenport Waldo, son of Aaron Waldo and Mary Davenport, married Sept. 21, 1854, to Charlotte Sophia, daughter of William and Ann (Wragg) Stewart, born Sept. 21, 1834, Jerusalem, N. Y. Children, 9th generation: Charles Aaron, born Aug. 31, 1855, Prattsburg, N. Y.; William Davenport, born May 23, 1858, died Oct. 25, '58; Charlotte Esther, born June 5, '59; John Hovey, born June 4, '60, died Aug. 19, '60, at Durant, Iowa; Lucius Otis, born Feb. 1, '63; Harvey Stewart, born Oct. 9, '65 — all born at Durant, Iowa; Mary Abbie, born April 2, '71, at Quincy, Ill.

Otis Waldo, son of Jesse Waldo and Martha Hovey, married Sept. 28, 1820, Prattsburg, N. Y., to Fannie, daughter of Aaron and Miriam (Munn) Cook, born Oct. 21, 1798, West Hampton, Mass., died Feb. 24, 1870, Prattsburg, N. Y. Children, 8th generation: Otis Harvey, born April 1, 1822, died Oct. 30, '74, Milwaukee, Wis; Sarah Ann, born Feb. 25, '25, died the same year, Prattsburg, N. Y.; Abigail Fanny, born Dec. 10, '26, died April 29, '29, same place; James Augustine, born July 10, '30.

Otis Harvey Waldo, son of Otis Waldo and Fannie Cook, married April 20, 1850, Highland, Mich., to Gertrude C. Van Valkenburgh, daughter of Jacob and Mary B. (Higgins) Van Valkenburgh, born April 4, 1826, Prattsburg. Children, 9th generation, birth-place Milwaukee, Wis.: Minnie Gertrude, born Feb. 1, 1851; Robert Van Valkenburgh, born Aug. 31, '52; Otis, born Nov. 11, '57; Fannie, born Sept. 28, '59, died Aug. 4, '61, Milwaukee; Mary, born July 3, '62, died Aug. 25, '62, Milwaukee.

“Otis graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., in 1843. In 1844 took the stump for Henry Clay and whig party. After election went South and studied law with Gen. John A. Quitman of Natchez, Miss. In 1849 moved to Milwaukee, Wis., and began to practice law. He was a candidate for mayor later on, but was defeated as the city was of adverse politics. Several years after he was a candidate for the U. S. Senate, but was beaten by Matt Carpenter. He was for many years President of the Wisconsin Central Railroad, and much of its prosperity is due to his efforts. When he received the news of his mother's death, the telegram announcing the sad fact to him was placed in his hands as he was about to begin a two hour's plea before a jury in Madison, Wis., Friday afternoon. He finished his plea and took the first train east, reaching Buffalo too late Saturday night to get a train for Corning, the nearest railroad station. He jumped aboard a starting train on the N. Y. Central, alighting at Palmyra, Wayne Co., about 35 miles from Prattsburg. A driving snow storm was raging but he chartered a livery team and undertook to reach home in time for the funeral. It was a terrible drive, and so formidable were the obstacles, so frequent the capsizes that they only reached the village as the people were returning from the cemetery. Greivous to him was the mishap. This midwinter journey evinced a characteristic affection for his mother, and showed with what energy he performed all duties of this life."

Minnie Gertrude (Waldo) Schoyer, daughter of Otis H. Waldo and Gertrude Van Valkenburgh, married June 3, 1875, Pontiac, Mich. to Ernest A. Schoyer, a merchant.

James Augustine Waldo, son of Otis Waldo and Fannie Cook, married Feb. 17, 1855, Bath, N. Y., to Margaret Amelia, daughter of John Marshall and Susan (Bellows) Wheaton, born Dec. 15, '31, Seneca Falls, N. Y. Children, 9th generation: Fannie, born Nov. 4, '56, Ripon, Wis; Anna May, born Sept. 19, '63, Prattsburg, N. Y.; Lizzie, born July 25, '65, died Feb. 22, '66, Prattsburgh, N. Y.

“Abner Waldo at the age of fourteen years, as was customary in those days, was bound out to a man in Walpole, N. H., to learn the tailor's trade. He was to serve an apprenticeship of seven years, or until he should become twenty-one years of age, but he bought one year of his time of his master, (an appellation that was given the man of whom he learned his trade). He then started on foot to seek his fortune in Vermont, taking with him all the treasures that he possessed, which consisted of a change of linen tied up in a pocket handkerchief, and a pair of shears in his pocket. On his way to Vermont he stopped at a farm house where he found an opportunity to make a suit of clothes, for which he received as a compensation twenty shillings. To express it in his own words, he said 'no nabob ever felt richer than he did at that time with the first money he had ever earned for himself.' Subsequently, he came to East Randolph, Vt., where he made a permanent settlement. The town was then in its infancy, and the state nearly a wilderness. Here he worked at his trade a few years with success, and as the town grew, he grew with it. He then relinquished his trade, bought him a farm on which he lived until nearly the close of his earthly life. He had many hardships to encounter and battle with in the new country, but he conquered them all and worked his way up step by step, until he rose to eminence, and was one of the staunch and prominent men of the town. For nearly forty years he held many public offices of trust in the town of Randolph. He owed his success to his own exertions, good judgment and ability. At the age of twenty-one he married Sally Goss, of East Randolph, and fifteen children were born to them, all of whom lived to be men and women."

Daniel was a blacksmith and farmer. His grandson, Rev. J. C. Waldo, states, "He was low in stature, thick-set, broad in chest and shoulders, very muscular, quick in understanding, scrupulously honest, and very orthodox. He would mount his horse by the stirrup from the ground as nimbly as a boy a month before his death, which was caused by an epidemic fever. His wife was unusually large, weighing 240 pounds, and not over-burdened with flesh. I have seen her take a barrel of cider from the rear of the cart and place it, quietly, upon the ground. She had the advantage of her husband in height, and had they ever come to blows (which I trust was never true of them) my grandfather, though a giant in strength, would certainly have had the worst of it. There is an anecdote about my grandmother Hannah, which I recollect, when a mere child, to have heard the old folks (Edward and his wife, when on a visit to my grandparents) make themselves merry over. There was an unlucky Wight living near to grandfather, who occasionally indulged too freely with the bottle. In a state of partial intoxication he called at the house. Grandfather being away, he expressed himself in a rather rude manner to my grandmother, whereupon she seized the offender (a man of average size) by the back of his neck and pantaloons, and extending him at arms length, ran with him over the road and plunged him into a goose-pond." Daniel and his wife both lived and died in Chesterfield, N. H.

Eunice Waldo, daughter of Daniel and Hannah, born Aug. 20, 1769.

Roswell Waldo, son of Daniel and Hannah, born April 20, 1772; married and lived in Rutland, Vt., but later settled near Cleveland, O. He had four children, 7th generation. He resembled his father in countenance, and adhered to his father's politics and Presbyterian ideas.

Diantha Waldo, daughter of Daniel and Hannah, born March 13, 1775.

Shubael Waldo, son of Daniel Waldo and Hannah Carlton, born May 2, 1777; married Rebecca Crosby, of Alstead, N. H. Children, 7th generation: Daniel, Josiah Crosby, James Elliot, George Curtis, Albert Carlton, Rosalie Melvina. Shubael died Oct. 6, 1859.

“ He was a farmer of steady habits, strong common sense, and naturally of a very cheerful and happy disposition. ‘Uncle Shub.,’ as he was familiarly called was a favorite with young and old, for his humor and inexhaustable fund of stories and anecdotes. His death was occasioned by being thrown from his carriage, as was supposed. He never had a physician until that time.”

Daniel Waldo, son of Shubael Waldo and Rebecca Crosby, born in Alstead, N. H., Jan. 6, 1802; married Maria Mabel Baker, resides at Morgan Co., Ill.; was married three times. Children, 8th generation: Mabel, Maria Elmina, Eva, James, too other sons.

“ Daniel was a man of his own mind. In mere boyhood he repudiated his family’s politics and religion, and became a warm Democrat and Universalist. He was appointed Postmaster by Jackson, and held the place until he removed to Illinois. His ambition was to become the largest farmer in his county. He owned 5,000 acres, chiefly of bottom land on the Illinois river, and mostly improved. Rev. J. C. Waldo states the year he visited his brother Daniel he had under his own care 1000 acres of corn, 200 of wheat, and 75 of rye. The year before he raised 45,000 bushels of corn.”

Rev. Josiah Crosby Waldo, son of Shubael Waldo and Rebecca Crosby, born Dec. 5, 1803, or ’04; married Elmira Ruth Ballou, 4th daughter of Rev. Hosea Ballou of Boston, Oct., 1830. Children, 8th generation: Ella Fiducia, Oliver, George Curtis, C. Grace, Frances Rebecca, Maturin Ballou.

Rev. J. C. Waldo, to whom we are indebted for nearly all the quotations concerning Shubael Waldo’s descendants, was educated in the Presbyterian faith. He had been contemplating a change in religious matters for some time, but had not quite decided everything in his own mind, when the sudden death of his mother ended the controversy. He says: "My mother, though one of the best of that hallowed name, and universally beloved, had never made a profession of religion, and for that cause, the Presbyterian minister, Rev. John Walker, who attended her funeral, very charitably consigned her to ——! This day's work settled the fate of orthodoxy for me. It was standing by her grave that day, while the wound the priest had inflicted was fresh and bleeding, that I made a vow to be revenged by devoting my life to blowing the obnoxious creed sky-high. I have kept the vow to this hour." He studied under Rev. Hosea Ballou. He preached in Boston and vicinity for two years, then went to Cincinnati, O. He found the leading men of that city ready to aid in establishing a liberal church. A meeting-house was built for him the first year. The same year he commenced the publication of a weekly paper, "The Sentinel and Star in the West," which is published to this day. His work was extensive there. "During his five years' stay in Cincinnati, he preached in all the large cities and principal towns in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and to some extent in Virginia and Tennessee. He published over one hundred controversial sermons, held a number of public debates, and planted the seeds of the new faith, first, and generally in the West." It was not unusual for him to preach four times in a day. While in Lynn, Mass., where he established two flourishing societies, he was attacked, from excessive speaking, with a disease of the throat and lungs, which threatened, for three years, as he says, "to end my war of words at least against orthodoxy, and for Universalism." He afterward recovered, and accepted a call for the third society in Cambridge, Mass.; where he remained eight years. Then went to Troy, N. Y., and there remained and labored six years. On account of his wife's health he then removed to New London. His wife was accustomed to write poetical articles for the periodicals of the day. The last she ever attempted was a few weeks before her death, which happened on the 29th of June, 1850. The following is her last poem :

The Ideal of the Spiritual.

The lofty walls are tapestried superbly
 With scenes of glory, changing evermore ;
 And light, not of the sun or moon, is streaming
 O'er golden dome and tessellated floor.

Far-reaching aisles, with everlasting pillars,
 And jewelled pavement mortal foot ne'er prest ;
 Such is the inner temple, at whose altar
 My weary spirit folds her wings to rest.

It is a haunted spot—a spell is o'er it.
 And all around, on terrace, lake and tree,
 Enchanting bird-notes mingle with the perfume
 Of flowers, that bloom to live eternally !

I said 'twas haunted—not in the old fashion,
 By restless spirits, whose coming I shall fear—
 But by angel forms of the true-hearted,
 Who seek my earthly pilgrimage to cheer.

I see their radiant smiles, and hear their voices,
 In dear familiar tones, repeat my name ;
 Fond arms encircle me, and joy ecstatic
 Pervades my soul, and thrills my trembling frame !

Some smile, when I describe this habitation,
 And say I am deceived—but well I know,
 That He who gave me powers for such creation,
 Would never mock my yearning spirit so !

Not half so real is my outward being,
 Wearing itself away in earthly strife ;
 While stronger, brighter, grows this blest ideal—
 The sacred earnest of eternal life.

HELEN.

Bud of promise, precious flower,
Thou art withered in an hour;
Early call'd to yield thy breath,
Thou art lovely e'en in death.

Jesus gave, he took away;
Bore thee hence to realms of day;
Where thy beauties may expand,
Nurtured by his tender hand.

In his glorious, happy home,
Evermore in freshness bloom;
Bud of promise, precious gem,
Deck thy Saviour's diadem.

Dea. Waldo is one of the leading men of Danielsonville, Conn.; has been deacon of the Congregational church there for many years. His principal business has been that of a merchant, though early in life he was a farmer and taught school some. In company with his brother Simon he established himself in the grocery business some ten years before the war, and they were very successful, their business increasing continually until they now possess, probably, the largest wholesale and retail grain and provision store in the county. In 1880 he made a tour of Great Britain, France, Italy, Switzerland, and many other countries of Europe, taking with him as his guest the pastor of his church, Rev. James Dingwell. After a sojourn of several months they returned home, having profited much by their travels. Mr. Dingwell gave several interesting discourses on the countries they visited, to the people of Danielsonville.

Simon Shepherd Waldo, son of Rufus Waldo and Harriet Shepherd, born in Canterbury, Ct., Feb. 15, 1828; married Julia A. Aldrich, Sept. 17, 1855; she was born in Smithfield, R. I., July 10, 1830. Children, 9th generation: Louis Philip, Edwin Augustus, George Burrett, Fred.

Mr. Waldo is a merchant, in company with his brother, Dea. John Waldo, of Danielsonville, Killingly, Conn.

Dellar Louise Lyon, daughter of Sarah Waldo and Waldo Wales, born Aug. 16, 1861; married Gerard M. Lyon, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 30, 1879.

Sarah Minerva, daughter of Sarah Waldo and Waldo Wales, born Oct. 11, 1870, probably in Woonsocket, R. I.

Edwin Waldo, son of Rufus Waldo and Harriet Shepherd, born March 16, 1834. While returning to the west after a pleasant visit to the old home, and relatives of Connecticut, he was drowned. The story of his death is a sad one, like all others caused by disaster on the deep. The "Lady Elgin," on which he sailed, collided with another steamer on Lake Michigan. She was soon dashed in pieces, and many lives were lost. Edwin clung to a piece of the wreck, and struggled seven long hours to reach the shore, and when within only a few feet of it his strength was so far gone he could hold out no longer and slipping from the broken timber met his death. His brother, Simon Waldo, went on and found the body and brought it home to Canterbury, Conn., where it was buried under the rites of the Free Masons. He was a devout man, loved and honored by all who knew him.

Clarissa S. (Waldo) Cook, daughter of Rufus Waldo and Harriet Shepherd, born Feb. 13, 1836; married Rodney D. Cook, of Woonsocket, R. I., Nov. 22, 1860. He was born at Cumberland, R. I., Feb. 27, 1837. Children, 9th generation: Louis Waldo, born March 25, 1864; Helen Maria, born Oct. 15, 1867, probably in Woonsocket, R. I.

Mary (Waldo) Witter, daughter of Rufus Waldo and Harriet Shepherd born in Canterbury, Conn., May 19, 1844; married Joel Witter, coal merchant of Danielsonville, Conn., Jan. 4, 1871. He was born in Canterbury, Conn., July 25, 1847. Children, 9th generation: Fred. Waldo, born in Danielsonville, Conn., Dec. 16, 1873, died July 8, 1875; Clarence Joel, born in Danielsonville, Conn., July 12, 1876.

Hannah Waldo, daughter of John Elderkin Waldo and Beulah Foster, was born in Hampton, Conn., March 16, 1800, died Aug. 13, 1803.

Seth Harden Waldo, son of John Elderkin Waldo and Beulah Foster, was born in Hampton, Conn., Oct. 4, 1802; married Abiah Spofford of Andover, Mass., April 11, 1834, who died Nov. 15, 1881. He again married. No children.

Seth Harden had the honor to graduate among the best students of a class of sixty at Amherst College, though he taught school every winter. He became a teacher in the first normal school in this country, the Teacher's Seminary, Andover, Mass. He was afterwards called to become the Principal of Oberlin Collegiate Institute. Later he was called to the Congregational pulpit. All through his long public life he has been a continuous worker, and his aim to always make works practical and beneficial, deserves the highest praise. In 1882, in his eightieth year, he began the publication of a new method of studying the English Grammar, which is considered by teachers as eclipsing anything of the kind known. He removed west when a young man, where he still resides, at Geneseo, Illinois.

Dea. Enoch Wight Waldo, son of John Elderkin Waldo and Beulah Foster was born in Hampton, Conn., July 14, 1805; married Sophronia, daughter of James and Sarah (Downing) Bingham, Oct. 10, 1831, who was born in Canterbury, Conn., April 27, 1809. Children, 8th generation: Sarah Cornelia, Amelia Ann, Marietta, Seth Harden, Sophronia Elizabeth, Lucinda, Enoch Wight, Adaliza.

Dea. Waldo followed farming the greater part of his life on the old homestead farm in Waldo district, at the Waldo four-corners in town of Canterbury, Conn. He taught school there a number of years; held many town offices, and was representative from Canterbury in 1856. He was deacon of the Congregational church of Westminster, and was a leading man in the town. While a member of the State militia, he nearly lost his life at a general training by the premature discharge of a field piece. He was a strong Republican, and a staunch patriot. He delighted in Revolutionary history, which he read with the deepest feeling. At the warmest period of the civil war, when the subject was freely discussed by enthusiastic Northerners in both town and country, its necessities, success, prospects, etc., he by chance was forced into a conversation with a neighbor who had been advancing rather unpatriotic sentiments, and in course of the talk, declared the "Northerners had no right to proceed South and destroy their neighbors and brothers, but should allow them to do as they pleased, so far as they had agreed by legislation, and their public sentiment," and in that strain he continued until the debate waxed strong and warm, when the deacon, who seldom allowed his temper to rise, could stand it no larger, declared "if he, though a friend and neighbor, should take arms to destroy this glorious union, bought by the sacred blood of the fathers, and established in the name of Jehovah as a free and independent country that their posterity might enjoy union and liberty thenceforth, he would shoot him as he would a dog." Sentiments like this were only characteristic of his nature. He died in Canterbury, March 2, 1877. He was a man of massive form but of average height, of even temper, strong personal character, and just in all his dealings. He had a wonderful retentive memory, and could quote Scripture, in which he was well read, to apply to most any subject to more successfully enforce a point. Both young and old delighted in listening to his ever ready anecdote or story. Frequently, in the absence of the pastor at Westminster, he would take the lead of the service, and preach a goodly sermon after his own sound ideas.

DEA. ENOCH WALDO AT HOME.

In imagination we see him now,
With his massive form and manly brow,
As, at the breaking of the dawn,
He plods along from house to barn.

He has crossed the highway that intervenes,
And passed the knoll with its dress of green;
Now the murmur of the stock we hear,
Expressing impatience as feast-time draws near.

As we watch him steadily on his return,
Laden with the product for the churn,
Is it a break in his walk that we discern?
Yes, but his step is strong and firm.

Later, we see him at the sacred board,
Asking a blessing on the bounties of God;
Reading the Bible, offering prayer,
All in the circle receiving their share.

Again we behold him a MAN among men,
Ready always to rise but never descend —
Now, bidding farewell to this domain,
He leaves with us all a golden name.

Sarah C. (Waldo) Battey, daughter of Dea. Enoch Waldo and Sophronia Bingham, was born in Canterbury, Conn., Sept. 3, 1832, died Jan. 6, 1874; married to John R. Battey, of Scituate, R. I., Nov. 27, 1851. He settled in Tiskilwau, Ill., in 1868, where he still lives following a successful farmer's life. He was born May 12, 1828. Married for second wife, 1879, Kate Young, of Danielsonville, Conn. Children, 9th generation, by first wife: Horace G., born June 10, 1855, died same year; Marion E., born Jan. 1., 1860, in Brooklyn, Conn., died March 6, 1875, in Illinois; Sarah C., born Dec. 22, 1873, died same year; Cora N., born at Indian Town, Ill., June 22, 1865, burned to death Nov. 24, 1867.

Amelia Ann Waldo, daughter of Dea. Enoch Waldo and Sophronia Bingham, was born in Canterbury, Conn., Dec. 23, 1833, died Aug. 9, 1839.

Marietta (Waldo) Hall, daughter of Dea. Enoch Waldo and Sophronia Bingham, was born in Canterbury, Conn., May 7, 1835; married to Joseph D., son of Noah and Sarah (Davis) Hall, Oct. 15, 1853. He was born in Sterling, Conn., Dec. 18, 1832. Children, 9th generation: Charles Edgar, Joseph Davis, Jr., Edward Waldo, Francis H., Frederic Clifford, Marietta, Ella Louise, Walter Everett, Ida Elizabeth.

She has been deeply interested in this work, and gave all the assistance she could in helping her son complete the book. She possesses many of the good qualities of her father, being duly resolute in all ways that she believes just; a strong temperance advocate — not even allowing cider in the house — and she has successfully imbued her six living children with the same sentiment. She is a member of the Methodist Church of Danielsonville, which she joined while a young woman. Her husband was a sergeant in the Eighteenth Connecticut Volunteers. He enlisted in 1862; was wounded at the battle of Piedmont, which entitled him to a pension dating from the close of the war. He was among a few fortunate ones who escaped at the Winchester fight in Virginia under Milroy, nearly all of his regiment being taken by the enemy, who were then on their way to fight the battle of Gettysburg. He is a shoe-maker and carpenter.

Charles E. Hall, son of Marietta Waldo and Joseph Hall, was born in Canterbury, Conn., Aug. 28, 1854. He is a musician in the United States service; enlisted in 1878, re-enlisted '83. For five years he was stationed at Fort Vancouver, W. T.; now with Gen. Custer's old regiment in Dakota.

Joseph D. Hall, Jr., son of Marietta Waldo and Joseph Hall, was born in Danielsonville, Conn., Aug. 29, 1856; married Hattie Estella, daughter of Henry and Caroline (Southwick) Stevens, Feb. 26, 1877, who was born in Troy, N. Y., Feb. 24, 1860. He is a printer by occupation, though he has been engaged in various kinds of business, having the adaptability that all Yankees have of "turning his hand" to most anything, perhaps. Compiler and publisher of the Hall and Waldo genealogies.

Edward W. Hall, son of Marietta Waldo and Joseph Hall, was born in Danielsonville, Conn., Aug. 6, 1859; married Minnie Fay Hedly April 12, 1883, who was born in Providence, R. I. She is an accomplished soprano singer. Edward is a musician and teacher of music. The violin is his favorite, upon which he is scienced. He followed printing several years.

Francis H. Hall, son of Marietta Waldo and Joseph Hall, was born in Danielsonville, Feb. 1, 1862, died April 3 same year.

Frederic C. Hall, son of Marietta Waldo and Joseph Hall, was born in Canterbury, Conn., Aug. 21, 1863. Printer. Aided in publishing this book.

THE OLD STEARNS HOUSE, BUILT ABOUT 1696.

THE OLD HOUSE.

The Stearns house, now owned and occupied by Joseph Hall, in which his children all lived during their young days, was built during the early part of the "hundred years Indian war," or about 1696, according to Isaac T. Hutchins, an old resident of Danielsonville, who claims to know its history. It was built in that place by a Dea. Stearns, of Mansfield, Ct. He sold it to Dr. Walton, a wealthy, hot-headed Tory, who was obliged to abscond to Canada during the Revolutionary war, to escape the wrath of the "sons of liberty." He sold all his possessions, and the house then became the property of Dr. Fuller, who became wealthy by being a surgeon on board of a privateer during the war. He sold the house to Dr. Penuel Hutchins, and finally died a pauper in Attleboro', Mass., losing his property by extravagant living. After the death of Dr. Hutchins, the house was owned by his son Isaac, who sold it to Joseph Bates, he disposing of it to Dea. Leonard Burgess, who moved it from the original site on Main street, to its present location on Hutchins street, when Mr. Hall bought it, and beautified it by enclosing it with trees. The house is the same in shape as when first built, with the exception of an addition of a few feet on the west end, and jets which were not built in those days. The frame is of enormous oak timbers, seemingly as sound to-day as ever. A view within shows its antiquity more than without, from the beams projecting into the rooms.

Marietta Hall, daughter of Marietta Waldo and Joseph Hall, was born in Danielsonville, Conn., March 29, 1866.

Ella L. Hall, daughter of Marietta Waldo and Joseph Hall, was born in Danielsonville, March 26, 1869, died Dec. 9, 1871.

Walter E. Hall, son of Marietta Waldo and Joseph Hall, was born in Danielsonville, Oct. 14, 1871.

Ida E. Hall, daughter of Marietta and Joseph, was born in Danielsonville, Feb. 20, 1874, died Aug. 21, same year.

Seth Harden Waldo, son of Dea. Enoch, was born in Canterbury, Conn., Nov. 21, 1837, died Aug. 15, 1839.

Sophronia Elizabeth Waldo, daughter of Dea. Enoch Waldo, was born in Canterbury, May 15, 1840, died July 11, 1857.

Lucinda (Waldo) Kingsbury, daughter of Dea. Enoch Waldo and Sophronia Bingham, was born in Canterbury, Conn., Sept. 15, 1844; married to George Edward Kingsbury, July 2, 1863, of Killingly, a mechanic and farmer. Children, 9th generation: Elizabeth F., Cora E., Waldo E.

Elizabeth F. (Kingsbury) Matthews, born in Canterbury, Conn., April 1, 1864; married July 16, 1883, to Francis J. Matthews, of the town of Killingly.

Enoch Wight Waldo, Jr., was born in Canterbury, Conn., Nov. 25, 1848, died July 10, 1867.

Adaliza (Waldo) Wood, daughter of Dea. Enoch Waldo and Sophronia Bingham, was born in Canterbury, June 22, 1851; married to Henry N. Wood, Jr., of Rhode Island, a machinist. Children, 9th generation: Cora Mabel, born in Brooklyn, Conn., Aug. 9, 1875; Minnie Etta, born in town of Brooklyn, Conn., Aug., 1882.

Sarah (Waldo) Branch, daughter of John Elderkin Waldo and Beulah Foster, was born in Hampton, Conn., Jan. 31, 1808; married Daniel Branch, A. M., Feb. 26, 1834. He was Superintendent of public schools of Iowa City, Iowa. He was a graduate of Union College, N. Y., has been engaged as a teacher in the Latin and Greek classes for many years. Now a farmer in Kansas. Children, 8th generation: John Howard, Elihu Burritt.

Mrs. Branch began her early school training in the town of Canterbury, Conn., which adjoins Hampton, the place of her birth, her parents having removed to that town when she was but three years of age. She evinced a love for books very early in life, and consequently became an efficient scholar. After her public profession of religion in her nineteenth year, when she united with the Congregational church, her earnestness became more intense to obtain a higher education, in order that she might be able to be more useful to the world. She left home and attended an academy in eastern New York, then taught by Prof. Salem Town. After a few months in this school she received, with two others, a certificate of extraordinary merit in scholarship and proper demeanor. She then went to Amherst, Mass., where she studied the classics under her brother's instruction, he being a student in the college there, and attended two courses of lectures delivered by Prof. Hitchcock. From this time on for several years she taught and studied. She was called to take charge of the ladies department in the Fort Covington Academy, N. Y., Prof. Daniel Branch acting as principal. After two years she was married to Prof. Branch. She resigned a year later and removed to Oberlin, Ohio, where she taught and studied several terms, she studying some time in Prof. C. G. Fenney's class in theology, and pursuing the classical course in that institution. She had conferred upon her the degree of A. M., by that college. She, with her husband as principal, afterward taught in the Farmington Academy, and then in the Granga Seminary in Granga county, Ohio, thence located in Prairie City, Ill.; to take charge of the academy there with her husband; she afterwards took charge of the McDonough Normal and Scientific College, of McDonough Co., Ill. They then settled in Cherokee Co., Kansas, in the pursuit of agriculture and stock raising, where they now reside. Mrs. Branch is noted for her piety and Christian example. "Rarely a term of school passed when there were not more or less conversions among her pupils. Often from ten to twenty in a term experienced a change of heart, and that largely through her influence." She has had several important positions offered her in the best colleges of the country, but circumstances seemed to forbid her acceptance.

John Howard Branch, son of Sarah Waldo and Daniel Branch, was born in Farmington, Ohio, May 13, 1838; married.

Elihu B. Branch, banker, son of Sarah Waldo and Daniel Branch, born in Chester, Ohio, Nov. 15, 1848; married Atta J. Ratchiff, May 13, 1873; she was born in Marengo, Iowa. Children, 9th generation: Olive Branch, born June 6, 1875; Walden Burr Branch, born Dec. 5, 1876.

Zachariah Waldo, Jr., son of Zachariah Waldo and Elizabeth Wight, born May 8, 1764, died March 13, 1810; married Joanna Butterfield, of N. H., Jan. 1, 1800. Children, 7th generation: Moses, Elizabeth, Hiram, Abel, Anson, Aseneth, Edward L.

Moses Waldo, son of Zachariah Waldo, Jr., and Joanna Butterfield, born Sept. 16, 1800; married Mary Ann Taylor April 1, 1824. Children, 8th generation; Sarah Louisa, Henry Clay.

Sarah Louisa Waldo, daughter of Moses Waldo and Mary Taylor, born 1825, died March 2, 1855.

Henry Clay Waldo, son of Moses Waldo and Mary Taylor, born June, 1828, died Oct. 12, 1852.

Hon. Loren Waldo's life was an eventful one. "His education, so far as it was obtained from schools and instructors, (except while studying law) was completed when he was fourteen years of age. From that time until he was twenty-one he taught school every winter, devoting the rest of the time to labor on his father's farm. His zeal for knowledge could not be quenched, and all this while he applied himself in every leisure hour, to study, and in this way mastered the higher branches of mathematics, and acquired a good knowledge of Latin. He carried Hodge's Logic with him into the fields, and in the brief intervals of labor mastered its contents.

JUDGE LOREN P. WALDO.

He left home when twenty-one and entered upon the study of law with his uncle in the town of Tolland, at the same time earning his living. At the age of 23 he was admitted to the bar by the county court of Tolland county at the September term in 1825. Beginning life under most discouraging auspices, with his courage and persistence he surmounted all obstacles, and rose to fill places of trust and honor. He was postmaster in Somers two years, and held town offices. He was Representative from the town of Tolland for 6 years, 1832, '33, '34, 39, 47, 48. In 1849 he was elected to represent his district in the 31st Congress of the United States. He was chairman on the committee on revolutionary pensions. During President Pierce's administration he was appointed Commissioner of Pensions at Washington, in which service he continued until elected Judge of the Superior Court of Connecticut for a term of eight years. About the year 1863 Judge Waldo removed from Tolland to Hartford, where he pursued the practice of his profession, at first in partnership with his son-in-law, A. P. Hyde, Esq., and more recently in the well-known firm of Waldo, Hubbard & Hyde." In politics he was a Democrat, and gave its candidates and measures his cordial and generous support. He wrote, in 1861, a history of Tolland. After his death the Hartford County Bar introduced resolutions highly applauding his life-work and lamenting the loss of so great a friend and public benefactor. He gathered a great deal of material some time before his death for the genealogy of this great family, and promised to prepare all he had for the press, but soon after died. His daughter kindly furnished all his papers for our perusal relative to this subject.

Jemima Goff, daughter of Zerviah Waldo and Job Goff, born Aug. 27, 1790, died Oct. 28, 1808.

Polly (Goff) Bartlett, daughter of Zerviah Waldo and Job Goff, born Feb. 21, 1793, in Otsego county, N. Y.; married Benjamin Bartlett, Dec. 30, 1813. She died July 9, 1837, or '57.

Waldo P. Goff, of Clarksburg, W. Va., son of Zerviah Waldo and Job Goff, born in Otsego Co., N. Y., Feb. 25, 1796, died Sept. 17, 1881; married Hannah L. Moore 1838. Children, 7th generation: Nathan, Charles J., May, Hattie.

Waldo P. was a member of the Virginia Legislature.

Gen. Nathan Goff, son of Waldo P. Goff and Hannah Moore, born in Clarksburg, W. Va., Feb. 9, 1842; married Laura E. Despard, of Clarksburg, Nov. 7, 1865. Children, 8th generation: Guy, born 1867; Percy, born 1870.

Gen. Goff has led an almost continuous public life. At the time of the war he, with his whole family, took sides with the Union, and in May, 1861, enlisted as a private in company G, Third Virginia Union Infantry. His regiment participated in many severe engagements. He soon became Second Lieutenant, and in 1864 he was made Major of his regiment, having been advanced through all the intermediate grades. In an engagement at Moorefield, Goff's horse was shot from under him, and he was taken prisoner and sent to Libby. While in prison a confederate Major Armsey, who lived in the adjoining county to Goff, was captured by the Federals and condemned to death as a spy, with others. Then the Confederates choose Goff as the person to put to death as an act of reprisal with others, as soon as the spies were executed. In his letter to President Lincoln in relation to his confinement he says: "If Major Armsey is guilty he should be executed, regardless of its consequences to me. The life of a single soldier, no matter who he may be, should not stand in the way of adherence to a great principle." Armsey was finally exchanged for Goff, and he again returned to his regiment. He was the means afterwards of saving Armsey's life; he having been captured and placed in the jail at Clarksburg, where the people threatened his life, and but for Goff's interposition would probably have carried their threats into execution. He left the army as a Brevet Brigadier General of Volunteers. He was admitted to the bar in 1865. He has been practicing law since that time with good success. He represented his town in the Legislature in 1867, and '68, when he was appointed U. S. District Attorney. In 1881 he was appointed Secretary of the Navy by President Hayes. In 1882 he was elected to the Forty-eighth congress. The Wheeling Sunday Register of Oct. 15, 1882, contains an extended biographical sketch of Gen. Goff.

Nathan Goff, of Clarksburg, W. Va., son of Zerviah Waldo and Job Goff, born April 2, 1798; married Catherine Britton, Oct. 13, 1836; 2d wife, Lucy Ann Evans.

Nathan was a merchant for many years. Now president of the Merchant's National Bank at Clarksburg. He was a member of West Virginia Legislature for seven years. Has been a public man for sixty years. He was familiarly known about Clarksburg as "Uncle Nathan Goff."

John Goff, farmer, near Clarksburg, W. Va., son of Zerviah Waldo and Job Goff, born Sept. 21, 1800; married Mary Davison, June 18, 1825. He died Jan. 7, 1854.

David Goff, of Beverly, W. Va., son of Zerviah Waldo and Job Goff, born Sept. 3, 1804; married Christiana Buckey; had two children.

He was a member of both houses of the West Virginia Legislature. He was a strong opponant of abolitionists, and argued that Congress had no constitutional right to pass any law upon slavery, except that expressly provided in the constitution. He was opposed to slavery, but claimed it the right of the state alone to abolish it.

Rev. John Waldo, of W. Va., son of John Waldo and Jemima Abbott, brother of Zerviah, born Jan. 15, 1762; married.

Daniel Waldo, son of John Waldo and Jemima Abbott, born May 24, 1764.

Jemima (Waldo) Lake, daughter of John and Jemima Waldo, born May 26, 1766; married Henry Lake, Aug. 1, 1784.

Jedediah Waldo, son of John Waldo and Jemima Abbott, born Oct. 17, 1772, died Jan. 20, 1858; married Polly Porter, who died April 13, 1816, aged 40. Children, 6th generation: David, Daniel and Lawrence, born in Harrison Co., W. Va.; probably others. David and Lawrence were in the Mexican war. David was a captain and distinguished himself. Lawrence was murdered by the Indians. Daniel removed to Oregon. Jedediah has children in Missouri, whose names we cannot give.

Having finished the lineage of the descendants of the first Edward so far as we could obtain knowledge, the next in order should be the daughters of John 1st, of Windham, Ct., but of them we have little knowledge.

Rebecca Waldo, daughter of John 1st of Windham, married Nathaniel Rudd; Catherine married Joseph Dingley; and of Ruth, Sarah, and Abigail, we have received no facts.

Cornelius Waldo Jr, son of Dea. Cornelius Waldo and Hannah Cogswell, married Faith Jackson. She was widow of Jeremiah Jackson, and daughter of Thomas Peck of Boston. Their children were Cornelius, who married Faith Savage
Rachel, " " John Durant
Judith, " " Edward Durant
Elizabeth, " " John Waldo.

The death of Cornelius Waldo is not recorded, but a deed of gift of land from Thomas Peck of Boston to his daughter Faith Waldo, widow, dated 8 June 1697, and recorded in Suffolk Deeds Vol. XIV fol. 408, shows that he had died before that date. The will of his widow Faith, (dated 12 Mch 1730; probated 14 Nov 1732; recorded Suffolk Probate Rec. Vol XXXI fol 166.) mentions children as above, and with the official records of the births marriages and deaths, amply suffice for the identification.

It may be noted here, that Elizabeth Waldo, daughter of the third Cornelius and wife Faith Savage, married Benjamin Austin, and not Tustin, as this writer has it.

Faith (Waldo) Corkson, daughter of Cornelius Waldo and Faith Savage, born Jan. 1, 1714, died Nov. 4, 1784; married Obadiah Corkson, by whom she had three children.

Cornelius Waldo, son of Cornelius Waldo and Faith Savage, born in Boston April 25, 1815, died Feb. 4, 1782; married a daughter of Major Hayward. She lived but a short time, and he married a second wife, but died childless. He lived in Worcester a short time, and afterwards settled in Sudbury, where he probably died.

Eliza (Waldo) Austin, daughter of Cornelius Waldo and Faith Savage, born in Boston Oct. 14, 1716, died May 4, 1801; married Benjamin Austin, of Boston, a member of the Provincial Congress. Had several children.

Thomas Waldo, son of Cornelius Waldo and Faith Savage, was educated a merchant. He was born Sept. 8, 1718, in Boston. He commanded a company of soldiers in the expedition to Louisburg under Sir William Pepperell. He commanded a cadet company called German Guards. He lived in Brattleboro' and died in Boston in 1796.

John Waldo, son of Cornelius Waldo and Faith Savage, born in Boston Oct. 30, 1720, died June 10, 1796; was educated a merchant. He married Abigail Wells, daughter of Samuel Wells, of Boston. He died childless.

Joseph Waldo, son of Cornelius Waldo and Faith Savage, born in Boston Jan. 11, 1723; married Martha Jones, daughter of John Jones, Esq., of Dorchester, Mass. They had two children, Joseph and John Jones. The latter was a graduate of Harvard College. Joseph, Sr., was a merchant in Boston in company with his brother Daniel Waldo. He went to England in 1773.

Extract from a letter written in 1811, relative to this member of the family :

LONDON, Oct. 20, 1811.

“ One day, while we were viewing the public buildings at Chittenham, the following very extraordinary inscription, on an elegant marble monument erected in a church-yard, arrested our attention :

Here lies the mortal remains of

Joseph Waldo, Esq.,

An American Merchant, born in the town of Boston,
In America, in the year of our Lord, 1723,
From whence he came to England.

After residing at Bristol a number of years, traveling through various parts of the kingdom, he retired to this town, where, after a patient endurance of the infirmities of old age, he departed this life —————

Like autumn fruit mellowed long,
Even wondered at that he fell not sooner;
Fate seemed to wind him up for fourscore
Years, yet freely ran he on ten winters more;
’Till, like a clock worn out with eating time,
The wearied wheels of life at last stood still.

Upon inquiry I found that he was alive in that town; that it was indited and erected under his inspection to be fitted up with dates, after his decease, by his son, who was living in Bristol. I visited him; found him in a very inferior state of health; faculties impaired; related to me his leaving America; expressed great sorrow for having so done, mentioning his having been a hardware merchant, copartner with his brother. He was then in the ninetieth year of his age, in good spirits, and had a good appetite."

Daniel Waldo, son of Cornelius Waldo and Faith Savage, born in Boston, Oct. 29, 1724, died 1808; married Rebecca Salisbury, daughter of Nicholas Salisbury, of Boston, May 3, 1757. Children, 5th generation: Joseph, born April 26, 1758, died Aug. 25, 1760; Thomas and John, born May 1, 1759, both died same year; Daniel, Jr., born June 11, 1760, died same year; Martha, Daniel, 3d; Rebecca Elbridge, born May 1, 1764, died Nov. 9, 1765; Elizabeth, Sarah, Rebecca.

Daniel, Sr., was educated a merchant by John Spencer, Esq., and began business with his brother Joseph, under the firm name of Joseph & Daniel Waldo, in Boston. In May, 1775, he removed to Providence, R. I., but afterwards settled in Worcester, Mass., where he died. His children were probably born in Boston.

Martha (Waldo) Lincoln, daughter of Daniel Waldo and Rebecca Salisbury, born Sept. 14, 1761, died March 28, 1828; married Levi Lincoln, of Worcester, Mass., a lawyer. He held the office of Attorney General of the United States, and was Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts.

Daniel Waldo, Jr., son of Daniel Waldo and Rebecca Salisbury, born Jan. 28, 1763, died July 9, 1845. Probably never married. He was a great business man of Worcester, Mass., in company with his father, and was President of the Worcester Bank.

Elizabeth Waldo, daughter of Daniel Waldo and Rebecca Salisbury, born Nov. 24, 1765, died Aug. 28, 1845.

Allen's Biographical Dictionary contains the name of Miss Elizabeth Waldo, who died in Worcester, in August, 1845, the same month and year given above, who bequeathed $12,000 to each of six societies.

Sarah Waldo, daughter Daniel Waldo and Rebecca Salisbury, born Feb. 22, 1769, died March 19, 1851, in Boston. "She bequeathed more than $50,000 to various institutions."

Lydia (Waldo) Austin, daughter of Cornelius Waldo and Faith Savage, born June 22, 1727, died Aug. 13, 1800; married Timothy Austin.

Dr. Albigence Waldo, son of Zachariah Waldo and Abigail ———, born in Pomfret, Conn., Feb. 27, 1750; married to Lydia Hurlbut, Nov. 1772. Children, 5th generation : Elisha Hurlbut, Ralph, Harriet, Thos. Fanning, Nancy, Albigence, Jr. ; by his second wife Lucy Cargill, had Lucy, and Laura.

We are indebted to Mr. John M. Cargill, of Providence, R. I., a nephew of Dr. Waldo's second wife, for papers furnished from which we gathered the following, the papers being found by him in an old house at the foot of Mount Tom, near the Connecticut river, where they were placed by the Doctor's wife, she having taken up her residence there soon after his death : " On the breaking out of the Revolution, Dr. Waldo proceeded with the neighbors around about Pomfret, to Boston, immediately after receiving news of the battle of Lexington, their leader probably being Gen. Putnam. He remained at Cambridge and Roxbury until honorably discharged, his health having failed him. On Dec. 14th, 1776, he was appointed by Gov. Trumbull, surgeon of the ship Cromwell. The ship not sailing, he, by the Governor's permission, attached himself to Col. Huntington's newly raised regiment as surgeon. This happened April 3d, 1777, in New Jersey, and he continued to do his duty with fidelity, and to the satisfaction of the officers and soldiers, and was discharged in Oct., 1779. He was in the winter quarters at Valley Forge, and the following spring was with the jubilant Yankees as they gave chase to the Red Coats, then flying for safety over the plains of Monmouth. The war made him a poor man. The continental money amounting to but little for the support of his family, and consequently, after the war petitioned the Connecticut Legislature to be ' exonerated from his past debts, have an equal share in the bounty of his country for real losses and services, and that he may have the privileges of a free citizen during the little remainder of life,' etc. He was a great admirer of Washington, as is shown by the many letters he sent home from the front containing glowing sentiments about him.

That Washington respected him highly is shown by his having employed him to copy many of his military orders, and presented him with a sword, which is still in the possession of Mr. Cargill, who also has the Doctor's iron-bound chest which he carried with him through the war, which now only contains the old sword, brass scales, by which he weighed his medicines, old papers, books, records, etc., his surgical outfit having been removed." Mr. Waldo received his early training in the schools of his native town. He acquired his great skill and eminence as a physician and surgeon by study and practice at home, by extensive observations in the army, and by intercourse with the best of physicians. He had an extended practice, was well known in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and Connecticut. Three of his day-books, bound in hog-skin, contain the names of some 6000 patients treated by him, covering a period of seventeen years, which included only those who had their accounts charged. Gen. Putnam's name appears several times as one of his patients. He was a neighbor and intimate friend of the General. His brother Samuel was the General's son-in-law.

He gave the eulogium at Putnam's grave, also at the grave of Capt. Asa Lyon, 1785. Being an able man he was often called upon on such occasions. He was so highly esteemed in Pomfret that many children were given his name. He died in 1794. Gen. McClellan delivered the funeral address in behalf of the Masonic fraternity. Moriah Lodge erected a monument to his memory in the principal cemetery of Pomfret. The following is the inscription upon the monument:—

“ The Master Wardens and Brethren of Moriah Lodge
In testimony of their esteem and respect
For the virtues, talents and usefulness
Of their late worthy Brother,
Erect this Monument

To the Memory
 Of ALBIGENCE WALDO, Surgeon,
 Who, attentively studying the works of God
 In the admirable frame of man,
 Rose to eminent distinction
 In the noble art of healing.
 His name is Charity;
 His actions, Humanity;
 His intercourse with men, benevolence and love.
 Born in Pomfret, Feb. 27, 1750;
 Died 29th Jan., 1794."

Dr. Waldo's book-mark, which he was accustomed to place in books loaned, was

PROPERTY.

"The wicked borroweth and returneth not."

The righteous borrow, read with care, and speedily return to the owner.

Dr. Waldo kept a diary while he was at Valley Forge, which is full of interest from beginning to end. We give a few extracts only. The contents of the diary was published in the Historical Magazine in 1861, and in 1863 it contained the poem that the Doctor wrote while in camp, a part of which will be found below, which was addressed to his wife, whom he called Celia. He began his diary Dec. 10, 1777.

EXTRACTS FROM THE DIARY.

Dec. 28th.—Yesterday upwards of fifty Officers in Genl. Green's Division resigned their commissions.—Six or seven of our Regiment are doing the like to-day. All this is occasion'd by Officers' families being so much neglected at home on account of Provisions.

The present circumstances of the Soldier is better by far than the Officer—for the families of the Soldier is provided for at public expense if the Articles they want are above the common price—but the Officers family are obliged not only to beg in the most humble manner for the necessities of Life,—but to pay for these afterwards at the most exorbitant rates.

Dec. 28--Building Hutts.

Dec. 29th.—Continued the work. Snow'd all day pretty briskly.—The party of the 22d returned—lost 18 men, who were taken prisoners by being decoyed by the Enemies Light Horse who brought up the rear, as they passed the Schuylkill to the city. Our party took 13 or 14 of their Horsemen. . . . Our party were several times mixed with the enemies' horse—not knowing them from our Connecticut Light Horse—their cloaks being the same.

Dec. 30th.—Eleven deserters came in to-day—some Hessians & some English—one of the Hessins took an ax in his hand & cut away the Ice of the Schuylkill which was 1-2 inches thick & 40 Rod wide and waded through to our camp—he was 1-2 an hour in the Water. . . .

Sir Wm. Askins commanded the 8000 who were out over the Schuylkill the other Day—but part of two Brigades were left in the city. Cold Weather. Hutts go on moderately—very cold lying in Tents—beyond what one can think.

Dec. 31st.—Ajutant Selden learn'd me how to Darn Stockings—to make them look like knit work. . . .

VALLEY FORGE, Dec. 31st., 1777.

Doct. Waldo, Surgeon of Col. Prentices Regt., is recommended for a Furlow.

J. HUNTINGTON, B. GENERAL.

In the Evening I joyfully received a letter from my good & loving Wife. The pleasure and satisfaction a man enjoys upon hearing of the health & peace of a Friend and more especially of a Wife, on whose affection & peace his own happiness depends, is a greater pleasure. * * *

1778. January 1st.—New Year. I am alive. I am well.

Hutts go on briskly, and our camp begins to appear like a spacious city. . . .

Bought an embroidered jacket. . . .

Jan. 3d.—Our Hutts or rather our Hermits' cell goes on briskly—having a short allowance of Bread this morning we divided it with great precision—eat our Breakfast with thankful hearts for the little we had. . . .

Another ship was taken from the enemy this Week—the lad- ing taken out and the Ship burnt. The other ship mentioned New Year's day was loaded with Officers Baggage and Medicines—with other valuable matters—& clothing for 2000 men compleat.

MARTIAL GLORY.

The hint taken from the following line of Pope :

“Gun, Drum, Trumpet, Blunderbus & Thunder.”

Soldiers! would you acquire a lasting fame;
Would you be pleased with a Hero's name,
Have you a wish to be a Martial Wonder?
Rush furious on your foes—& fearless blunder,
Thro' Gun, Drum, Trumpet, Blunderbuss and Thunder!

Fresh Beef and Flour make me perfectly Sick—especially as we have no spirits to drink with it; but others stand it and so must I.

Sunday, Jan. 4th. I was call'd to relieve a Soldier tho't to be dying—he expired before I reach'd the Hutt. He was an Indian—an excellent Soldier—and an obedient good-natur'd fellow. He engaged for money doubtless as others do;—but he has serv'd his country faithfully—he has fought for those very people who disinheritt'd his forefathers—having finished his pilgrimage, he was discharged from the War of Life & Death. . . .

What a frail-dying creature is Man. We are certainly not made for this world—daily evidences demonstrate the contrary.

Ah! frail—vain man—ye jest of fortune Here.
Riches thy bane—and Poverty thy curse.
All pleasures glutt thee—pain afflicts thy heart,
Thy Body only food for death & Worms.
Look upward then—O Man—the God of Worlds
Has formed another World for the—by far
Superior to this Orb on which we dwell.

The Marquis De la Fayette, a Volunteer in Our Army—& he who gave three ships to Congress, is very agreeable in his person and great in his character; being made a Major General--Brigadier Conway, an Irish Colonel from France, took umbrage thereat, and resigned—but is now made Inspector General of the army—he is a great character—he wcre a commission in the French Service when he was but ten years old. Major General Lord Sterling, is a man of a very noble presence.

Count Polaski—General of the Horse is a Man of hardly middling Statue—sharp countenance—and lively air; He contended a long time with his Uncle the present King of Poland for the crown—but being overcome he fled to France—and has now joined the American Army, where he is greatly respected & admired for his Martial Skill, Courage & Intrepidity. Genl. Green & Genl. Sullivan are greatly esteemed. Baron De Kalb, a Major General is another very remarkable character, and a Gentleman much esteemed.

Jan. 5th.—Apply'd for a Furlow, Surgn. Genl. not at home
—came back mumping & Sulkey.

Jan. 6th.—Apply'd again—was deny'd by reason of Inoculations being set on foot.

8th.—Unexpectedly got a Furlow. Set out for home. The very worst of Riding—Mud & Mire.

We had gone thro' Inoculation before this furlow.

EXTRACTS FROM THE POEM.

BY DR. ALBIGENCE WALDO.

Written under circumstances not likely to prompt one to rhyme-making.

SECOND LINE IN CAMP.

VALLEY FORGE, April 26, 1778.

INTRODUCTION.

I sing in Hudebrastie strains,
Of huts, encampments, and campaigns.
O CELIA! listen to my lays,
For my ambition is thy praise:
Inspired by Him who formed thee,
I caughted friendship's first idea.
The happy knot, I fondly own,
Confirm'd my love for you alone—
Be then my muse, and smooth along
This rugged medley of a song.

MY HUT AND THE PROSPECT FROM IT.

My humble hut demands a right
To have its matter, birth, and site
Described first! Of pond'rous logs
Whose bulk disdains the winds or fogs.
The sides and ends are fitly raised,
And by dove-tail each corner's brac'd;
Athwart the roof young saplings lie,
Which fire and smoke has now made dry—
Next, straw wraps o'er the tender pole,
Next earth, then splints o'erlay the whole;
Although it leaks when show'rs are o'er
It didn't leak two hours before.
Two chimneys plac'd at op'site angles
Keep smoke from causing oaths and wrangles,
(Which some philosophers have sworn
Will turn us as quick out of th' door,
And is the second plague in life
To what is called the scolding wife;

But I know nothing of this matter,
 Being never plagu'd with female clatter;
 Peace to all such who know that too,
 While happy I am blessed with you :)
 Our floors of sturdy timber made,
 Cleav'd from the oak and level laid ;
 Those cracks where zephyrs oft would play
 Are tightly closed with plastic clay ;
 Three windows, placed all in sight,
 Through oiled paper give us light ;
 One door, on wooden hinges hung,
 Lets in the friend, or sickly throng ;
 By wedge and beetle's splitting force
 The oaken planks are made, though coarse,
 By which is formed a strong partition
 That keeps us in a snug condition ;
 Divides the kitchen from the hall,
 Though both are equal, and both small,
 Yet there the cook prepares the board,
 There serves it up as to a lord,
 There knives and spoons and kettles rattle
 While here we talk of war and battle ;
 There is the chat and fun of boys
 Here pensive thoughts or friendship's joys,
 Thore flights of fancy youth pursue
 While here I set and think of you.

* * * * *

PRAISE OF THE CAMP AND ITS FOUNDER, WASHINGTON.

'Tis not each high aspiring dome
 That graced the streets of ancient Rome,—
 Not Troy's high walls, that rais'd the eyes
 With tow'ring spires toward the skies,—
 Not London's pride—that painted Doll,
 Though once our happy Capitol—
 Can equal, as the world must own,
 This spacious Camp of Washington !

* * * * *

But here to sing the General's praise,
 With Washington to grace my lays,
 Would strain my muse beyond its pow'r
 And ev'n true praise itself devour,
 Yet still I must and will impart
 A verse or two to show my heart.

Oh WASHINGTON ! what soul like thine,
 If aught below can be divine,—
 'Tis thou !—" in every instance try'd
 Above all passion, pain, or pride,
 Or power or rage of public breath,
 Vile Lucre," or the dread of Death,
 Not one that knows thee but must love—
 Those that but see thee will approve !
 The World and Angels do command
 The heav'n-born Universal Friend.
 Oh, could I reach the true sublime !
 Transmit his worth to latest time !

In son'rous verse sublimely raise
His virtues and deserved praise,
Quartos and folios I'd write upon
And shew the world a WASHINGTON !

But let me shrink into myself,
Least from Parnassus some vile Elf
From tall Pegasus tumble me
And make me but too plainly see
I ne'er was born nor made a Poet
Make all that know me, and Celia know it,
Therefore I'll softly walk along
And humbly sing my narrative song.

Elisha Hurlbut Waldo, son of Dr. Albigence Waldo and Lydia Hurlbut, was born Sept. 11, 1773, died July 25, 1801, at Charleston, S. C., of yellow fever, while there on business, being at the time, state printer of Georgia.

CHAPTER VI.

JONATHAN WALDO

AND DESCENDANTS.

Jonathan, youngest son of Dea. Cornelius Waldo, was born in Clemsford, Mass., in 1668; married Hannah Mason, Nov. 28, 1692. Children, 3d generation: Samuel, Jonathan, Jr., Hannah, Ann.

Jonathan removed to Boston, and established himself as a merchant. He became wealthy. The "Boston Gazateer" of May 31, 1731, contains the following article: "On the 26th past, died here, and on Monday last was honorably interred, Mr. Jonathan Waldo, in the sixty-third year of his age, who sometime since was one of the most considerable shopkeepers in the place, but did of late retire to a more private life. He was always justly accounted a man of integrity, a fair dealer, and a liberal benefactor to the poor, and hath left large donations to pious uses."

Gen. Samuel Waldo. Samuel, Brigadier General, son of Jonathan Waldo and Hannah Mason, was born in Boston, probably, in 1696, died of apoplexy May 23, 1759; married Lucy, who died in Boston, Aug. 7, 1741. Children, 4th generation: Samuel, Jr., Francis; graduates of Harvard College.

Samuel was a rich merchant of Boston. "He was a very accomplished man, active and enterprising. As an officer he was distinguished. He was a great traveler, having crossed the ocean fifteen times." He settled the town of Waldoboro', Maine, according to an old memorandum, with Germans brought by him from Germany in 1754. He was a Brigadier General in the King's service in the French war, and was with forces in Nova Scotia at the battle of Mina, Feb., 1747.

Samuel Waldo, Jr., son of Gen. Samuel and Lucy, born in Boston, probably, in 1721, died April 16, 1770; married Sarah Erving. Children, 5th generation: Samuel, John Erving, Francis, Ralph, Sarah, Lucy.

Samuel, Jr., was a graduate of Harvard College, class of 1743, and removed to Falmouth, (now Portland) Me. In 1744 he was elected a member of the General Court, and commissioned a colonel the same year by Gov. Shirley. He was appointed Judge of Probate for the county of Cumberland in 1760, and continued in office until his decease; was a member of the legislature eight years.

Francis Waldo, son of Gen. Samuel and Lucy Waldo, born probably in Boston, but afterwards removed to Falmouth, (Portland) Me., graduated at Harvard College 1747. CHAPTER VII.

ZIPPORAN WALDO,

(Descendant of John Waldo, Chap. II.)

AND DESCENDANTS.

Zipporan Waldo, son of Zacheus Waldo and Talitha Kingsbury, born in Windham, Conn., Nov. 13, 1747; married Hannah Ripley. Children, 6th generation: Zacheus, Bradford, Harriet, Lydia, Ora, David Ripley.

Zacheus Waldo, son of Zipporan Waldo and Hannah Ripley, born in Sharon, Conn. We have been unable to obtain any definite information about Zacheus Waldo.

Bradford Waldo, son of Zipporan Waldo and Hannah Ripley, born in Sharon, Conn. All the information we can obtain relative to Bradford Waldo is to the effect that he left his home quite young, settling somewhere in Ohio, where he married.

Harriet Waldo, daughter of Zipporan Waldo and Hannah Ripley, born in Sharon, Conn., died —; never married.

Lydia Waldo, daughter of Zipporan Waldo and Hannah Ripley, born in Sharon, Conn., died —; never married.

Ora (Waldo) Dakin, daughter of Zipporan Waldo and Hannah Ripley, was born in Sharon, Conn., April 1, 1788, died Sept. 10, 1856; married David Dakin Sept. 14, 1806. Children, 7th generation: Jane Eliza Dakin, born Sept. 14, 1807; Deborah Clark Dakin, born Sept. 25, 1811; David Waldo Dakin, born June 29, 1813, died Jan. 12, 1871; William Ripley Dakin, born Nov. 19, 1819, died Nov. 2, 1846; Julia Harrison Dakin, born March 25, 1818, died Nov. 16, 1843; Henry Bostwick Dakin, born June 10, 1822, died Nov. 25, 1825.

David Ripley Waldo, son of Zipporan Waldo and Hannah Ripley, was born in Sharon, Conn., July 22, 1778; married Deborah Clark, the daughter of George Clark, of Nantucket, Mass. Deborah Clark was born March 3, 1779, and died March 3, 1848. Children, 7th generation: George Clark, Charles, Henry, William.

In 1794 David Ripley Waldo removed to Hudson, N. Y., and died there Oct. 16, 1815. David R. Waldo was hard-working, conscientious and scrupulously honest; and by these means at the age of 37, when he died, he had succeeded in amassing a large fortune. His business was that of general merchandise and freighting.

George Clark Waldo, son of David Ripley Waldo and Deborah Clark, was born in Hudson, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1798, and died in Boston, Mass., April 20, 1826. We have been unable to secure anything of value concerning George Clark Waldo. It is known that he followed the sea.

Charles Waldo, son of David Ripley Waldo and Deborah Clark, was born in Hudson, N. Y., Sept. 20, 1800, and died at Hudson, N. Y., Oct. 17, 1838. He graduated at Union College. He was by profession a lawyer of considerable prominence; held various positions of trust and responsibility; a brilliant conversationalist and ready debater. Among his intimate friends were numbered many of the learned and influential men of his time. His preferences were the society of refined and literary gentlemen. He never married.

Henry Waldo was born in Hudson, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1805. He was the son of David R. Waldo and Deborah Clark. On Feb. 10, 1845, he married Sarah Heath, of Hudson, a daughter of John Heath and Maria Webb. They had four children, 8th generation: Jane Eliza, George Clark, Deborah, Hattie.

Henry Waldo was of a roving disposition, fond of adventure, brave and hearty, and at the age of fifteen he ran away from his home and embarked on a sailing vessel as a sailor. His elder brother Charles, not caring to have Henry follow the sea, pursued him and endeavored to induce him to remain at home, but he had his labor for his pains. Henry was determined to see the world, and despite all the persuasions of his friends remained a sailor. Among the many reminiscences of his roving life are the following:

One day during a fearful gale of wind an English brig was sighted; signals of distress were flying from her mast-head, and to all appearances her situation was a desperate one. The vessel upon which young Waldo was sailing ran down toward the unfortunate vessel, only to find that she was water-logged and sinking. The waves ran so high that to reach the sinking ship seemed almost impossible. Young Waldo, who was then mate of his vessel, was not daunted by the outlook; he went forward among his men and asked if any of them would go with him to the wreck. Four volunteered to go at the risk of their lives. After great difficulties they reached the brig, but the wind was so high that they found it impossible to make fast to her. Two or three times their light boat became near being swamped. Taking advantage of moments when the boat would approach the brig, a man and his wife and three children were rescued. Not satisfied with this, young Waldo made two more trips to the sinking vessel and succeeded in saving the rest of the crew. About four hours previous to the rescue an English vessel had "spoken the brig," but instead of laying by had left her to her fate. For this service the British Board of Admiralty presented Henry Waldo and the crew of his vessel with £100 sterling.

On another occasion Henry Waldo was wrecked in the Atlantic ocean ; for two days and three nights he and seven companions sat on the taffrail of his ship, with difficulty keeping their heads out of water, the sea washing over them all the time. On the third morning they were rescued from their perilous position by a Charleston packet.

Henry Waldo followed the sea until he was forty years of age. About this time he was made captain of the ship "Orbit." A short time afterwards he retired, married, and settled down in Hudson, N. Y. He engaged in mercantile pursuits, but the quiet life of Hudson did not agree with his roving temperament. In 1849, when the California gold fever was raging, a company of volunteers was organized in Hudson for the purpose of buying a vessel in which to sail to the coveted gold fields. Fifty-four men composed the party, and $27,000 was invested in the enterprise. The bark "Mousam" was purchased, and Henry Waldo was unanimously elected captain of the vessel and treasurer of the company. After a successful voyage the party reached San Francisco, where the vessel was sold and the balance of cash and provisions distributed pro rata among them. To enumerate the different pursuits of this gallant army of explorers is not our purpose. Their lives are a part of the history of California. Henry Waldo remained about eighteen months ; during his short stay he was elected associate judge of Eldorado county, and opened the first court there. He was prominently connected and identified with this now thriving county. At this time his health not being good he determined to return to the east. Every effort was made to persuade him to remain, but to no purpose. On his way home on board ship he was stricken with shagrus fever and came near dying. His determination not to die then, to use his own words, saved his life. He succeeded in reaching safely his old home in Hudson, N. Y., where, under careful nursing, he soon recovered his health. About this time political party contests were running high. Captain Waldo was offered and accepted the nomination for Sheriff of Columbia county, New York state, and he was the only republican elected on the ticket, his majority being eighty-three votes. The contest was the closest ever known in Columbia county. In 1865 Captain Waldo was given an appointment in the customs service in New York City. He is now in the eightieth year of his age, is well and hearty, and able to attend to his business.

Jane Eliza (Waldo) Hudson, daughter of Henry Waldo and Sarah Heath, born in Hudson, N. Y., March 17, 1846; married William Henry Hudson, of Troy, N. Y., May 30, 1866. Children, 9th generation: Henry Waldo and Ralph Clark.

Henry Waldo Hudson, son of Jane Eliza Waldo and William Henry Hudson, born in Troy, N. Y., March 3, 1870.

Ralph Clark Hudson, son of Jane Eliza Waldo and William Henry Hudson, born in Troy, N. Y., Oct. 23, 1875.

George Clark Waldo, son of Henry Waldo and Sarah Heath, born in Hudson, N. Y., March 5, 1848; married Florence Adelaide Post, of Westbrook, Conn., Oct. 10, 1874.

George Clark Waldo is President of the Excelsior Savings Bank of New York City, and the youngest bank president in the state of New York. He is also a member of the firm of E. L. Post & Co., oil merchants, New York.

Deborah Waldo, daughter of Henry Waldo and Sarah Heath, born in Hudson, N. Y., Feb. 27, 1857.

Hattie (Waldo) Hydorn, daughter of Henry Waldo and Sarah Heath, born in Hudson, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1860; married Joseph Bartlett Hydorn, of Troy, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1883.

William Waldo, son of David R. Waldo and Deborah Clark, born in Hudson, N. Y., March 23, 1808, and died March 1, 1849; never married. He was an accountant of decided ability, correct and methodical in his habits, a firm friend, strong in his likes and dislikes. A small portion of his life was spent in New York City, where he was employed as an accountant with a firm whose place of business adjoined that of the old firm of Waldo, Barry & Co. He was also in New Orleans for a short time. William Waldo was never satisfied away from home; he was devotedly attached to his mother, and lived but one year after her death.

ERRATA.
